MP's 'de-skilling' slur causes a rumpus

A suggestion made by Mr Anthony Wedgwood Benn, MP for Bristol South-West, that some "de-skilling" of the work of pharmacists should be practicable is likely to result in a meeting between Mr Benn and the city's pharmacists.

Mr Benn has asked for the meeting, to discuss his suggestion — made in a letter to the Secretary of State for Social Services, Sir Keith Joseph — and, in particular, the shortage of chemists' shops in certain parts of the city.

His request was made to Mr W. J. Homer, secretary of Bristol Local Pharmaceutical Committee on Tuesday, and came after several days of sharp criticism of Mr Benn by the local chemists.

They had taken exception to his proposal about "de-skilling." His letter to Sir Keith was reported in the Bristol Evening Post.

In the letter Mr Benn expressed concern at "the shortage of chemists' shops able to dispense prescriptions for people in Bristol" and wrote: "I find it hard to believe that with packaged drugs of the kind now available, the same skill is really required for dispensing as was the case many years ago [and that] some de-skilling would not be practicable."

Mr Benn listed four ways of overcoming the shortage:

- ☐ Arrange for dispensing to be done in health centres.
- ☐ Persuade "the appropriate authorities to re-examine the qualifications needed . . . for some simple dispensing."
- ☐ Make it economic for 'druggists and others' to provide a pharmaceutical service in remote areas.
- ☐ Improve facilities for delivery of prescriptions.

In the Evening Post the following night Mr Homer criticised Mr Benn's remarks saying: "This is obviously a slur on pharmacists. Mr Benn simply hasn't done his homework."

In a later issue of the paper Mr Homer expressed his belief that any pharmacy opening in the area in question would be bankrupt within 12 months. "The number of retail chemists in any community is controlled by economics and economics only."

Another Bristol pharmacist,

Mr C. P. Reeve, interviewed on the BBC's south-western edition of "Today" said that Mr Benn should concentrate "less on the de-skilling of pharmacists and a little more on the up-skilling of politicians."

Mr Benn's proposal for a meeting will be considered by the Committee of Bristol Branch of the Pharmaceutical Society on September 3. Mr Homer told the C&D on August 18. In making his request Mr Benn had asked to talk about the economics of pharmacy and said that the Pharmaceutical Society's proposals for planned distribution could be discussed. He also suggested that a larger subsidy on the lines of that given in rural areas might be considered for pharmacies in suburban areas.

Mr Homer expressed satisfaction at the possibility of talks on a personal level which could remove some of the controversy that had surrounded the public discussion.

Mr Benn told the C&D that his intention in writing to the Minister had been to draw attention to a serious problem. His four points were not new and he had known of the Society's planning proposals when he wrote his original letter. He was happy to have succeeded in his aim.

"The first thing to do now is to get a concerted view at this end and then to keep up pressure on the Minister."

When he used the word "de-skilling," he meant taking part of a function that had hitherto been performed completely by a skilled man and giving that part to one less skilled. The suggestion could be taken as a reference to the use of dispensing assistants in pharmacy.

Rush order for cholera vaccine

Five thousand doses of cholera vaccine were rushed by Burroughs Wellcome & Co to London airport from Dartford by a relay of police cars on Monday in response to an urgent order from Abu Dhabi on the Persian Gulf.

The order, via the London office of the Government of Abu Dhabi, was received by telephone at 9 am and was dispatched on the 11.45 am plane from Heathrow.

Further orders for cholera vaccine for the Middle East included 250,000 doses, dispatched direct to Libya on Tuesday and 12,500 doses collected by the Libyan Embassy on Monday; 50,000 doses for Muscat, a further 15,000 doses for Abu Dhabi, and 500 doses for Gibraltar.

Essential cooling for the process is provided by a system designed by the York division of Borg-Warner Ltd. It leads a 3,000-gal storage tank linked to this and five similar soap-making machines. Another record for C&D

The C&D continues to forge ahead as the leading weekly for retail pharmacy. In the six months January-June 1970, ABC-audited figures showed a new record total circulation averaging

15,158

That is a weekly increase of 517 over the July/December 1969 average, which itself surpassed all previous levels.

A measure of the success story behind these figures is that they have been achieved against an increase in subscription rates and a reduction in the number of retail pharmacies.

The C&D's progress can be judged by the following figures (subscription rate is given in parenthesis): 1967, average circulation 13,615 (£4 10s); 1968, 13,839 (£5); July/December 1969, 14,641 (£6); January/June 1970, 15,158 (£6).

Ministry chief inspector appointed

Mr A. G. Fishburn, FPS, MPLA, FRIC, has been appointed principal inspector on the staff of the chief pharmacist in the Department of Health. Mr R. Baker, BPharm, MPS, AMBIM, and Mr W. P. Jones, FPS, MChemA, FRIC, have been appointed senior inspectors.

Mr Fishburn retired in March 1969 from the management of the pharmaceutical department of Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd, after more than 25 years with the company.

He was awarded the Pharmaceutical Society's Harrison Memorial medal in 1965 and the following year became a member of the British Pharmacopoeia Commission.

Mr Baker was formerly with Parke Davis & Co, whilst Mr Jones was employed by Cyanamid.

Pending the appointed day for the introduction of licensing, the inspectors are to be engaged on preparatory work in connection with the implementation of the Medicines Act 1968.

Kirkcaldy health centre: pharmacists get their reply

Kirkcaldy, Fife, chemists could be the first in Scotland to form a consortium to provide a pharmaceutical service within the health centre planned for their town.

Through their local Member of Parliament, Mr Harry Gourlay, they have been told by Mr Edward Taylor, MP, Under Secretary for Health and Education, Scottish Office, that if it is decided to include a pharmacy within Kirkcaldy health centre, pharmaceutical services would be provided on a chemist contractor basis and that all the chemists in Kirkcaldy would be given an opportunity to participate in a consortium.

Earlier this year, more than half the retail pharmacists in Kirkcaldy, including Boots Ltd, expressed a wish to join such a consortium and application to the Department to provide the service was made through the Member of Parliament.

The Kirkcaldy centre will have ten group practices and at the time of the chemists' application it was not known whether the architect's plans were so far advanced as to preclude accommodating dispensing facilities.

On this matter Mr Taylor's letter concludes: "The architect's plans have not reached a stage where such accommodation as would be required could not be incorporated."

The Scottish Department is to take a decision soon as to whether a pharmacy should be included, a spokesman said adding that it was hoped construction would begin next year for completion by 1972.

1971 Conference science papers

Authors of original scientific work for presentation at the British Pharmaceutical Conference meeting in Glasgow, 1971, will be able either to submit full papers by February 1, 1971, which will be refereed, edited and processed in the usual manner by the Journal of Pharmacy and Pharmacology, or to submit abstracts, describing original work, by July 1, 1971. Galleys of full papers and copies of abstracts will be available during August 1971. Abstracts will, if the authors so wish, be published in the Journal of Pharmacy and Pharmacology.

Freak rains hit chemists in Belfast

Pharmacies took a heating in the freak rainstorm that produced heavy flooding in Belfast last weekend.

The meteorological office at Aldergrove, a few miles from the city, recorded a rainfall of 2.60 inches in the period from 10 am on Saturday until 10 am on Sunday, the highest ever recorded in a 24 hour period.

When it is noted that most of this fell from the late afternoon on Saturday, the force of the storm can be better gauged.

Wide areas of the city, especially some of those which figured in the rioting of the past year or so, were under water, and in many places small cars were submerged.

Premises affected

Chemists are especially vulnerable where there is flood water, according to Mr C. S. Ritchie, secretary of the Ulster Chemists' Association.

On the morning of August 18 the UCA had still not received any direct notification from pharmacists whose premises were flooded.

Word had, however, reached them that the following were among those affected:

Belfast Co-operative Chemists Ltd, Andersonstown, Falls Road; C. Boyd, 332 Donegall Road; Esler Pharmacy Ltd, 42 Howard Street; J. C. Young Ltd, 6 Great Victoria Street; Irwin's Pharmacy Ltd, 35 Great Victoria Street; J. P. Beagon, 3 Beechmount Avenue; M. B. Falls, Molesworth Street, Cookstown, co Tyrone.

In no instance had the extent of the damage been reported.

A group of shops in the Great Victoria Street-Grosvenor Road district suffered especially. One of these, Young's, which is among them, has just been taken over by Mr G. L. Hall. Both Mr Hall and Mr Young were at the premises on Monday morning for mopping up operations.

"I spent six hours trying to get to my shop on Sunday," Mr Hall told the C&D. "The nearest I could approach to it was Hope Street, nearly 300 yards away.

"Finally, I was able to wade through eight inches of water and get inside. A lot of orders which had been made up on Saturday night had been lost, and we also lost quite a lot in cosmetics.

"The total I estimate to be between £200 and £250."

Mr Young, who is still assisting Mr Hall in the takeover period, said there had not been flooding like it in living memory. He was inclined to place a lot of the blame on the Blackstaff River, one of a number of little rivers which run through Belfast and into the Lagan.

"I hope the Corporation do something to improve the condition of the Blackstaff, for no one wants a repeat of this sort of thing," said Mr Young.

Among other shops which suffered in this district were J. E. Deehan, of Grosvenor Road, and M. W. Henderson, also of Grosvenor Road. To add to their problems, their telephones were put out of order.

Young women's fancy

Make-up, cosmetics and toiletries are favourite Christmas gifts bought by women in the 13 to 24-year-old age group according to a new survey carried out for International Publishing Corporation into the Christmas present-buying habits of these young women.

Bath toiletries alone are bought by almost two-thirds of the 13 to 15-year-old girls and 58 per cent of 16 to 18-year-olds. Pre- and after-shave products account for a high percentage of purchases, particu-

A walk-out at Inter-Alia's new factory

About 70 men and women stopped work and walked out of the new Girvan factory of Inter-Alia on Tuesday, August 11, at 11 am. They left without giving any explanation to the management.

The company later learned the reason was that they had refused to allow union meetings to take place during working hours. Mr R. Simon, director, told the C&D that attempts to discuss the situation with the London office of the Transport and General Workers' Union had failed.

The company had, therefore, decided to regard the withdrawal of labour as "resignation" by the employees and new recruits were now being taken on.

Meanwhile, the remaining employees and staff were attempting to deal with the outstanding orders.

The company has a large export business and currently is holding orders totalling $2½ million.

Perfume is bought by 39 per cent of all the 13 to 24-year-olds. Shaving equipment is popular with 10 per cent of them, but electric razors are left to the 19-24 age group.

Eye make-up is bought by 8 per cent of 13-24's, miscellaneous cosmetics by 18 per cent, creams by 13 per cent and hair spray by 2 per cent.

Each woman spends an average of £15 on Christmas gifts, the survey shows, and the total is nearly £70 million.

COMPANY NEWS

Gala's share capital

Following the proposal that Gala Cosmetic Group Ltd will acquire certain assets of Smith & Nephew's toiletry division, including Nivea products (last week p 179) it is proposed that Gala's authorised share capital be increased from £1m to £3.2m and that a two-for-one capitalisation issue be made to ordinary shareholders thus increasing the issued share capital of Gala to £1,450,000.

Smith & Nephew has warranted to Gala that the realisable value of the net tangible assets purchased by Gala amounted at June 22 to not less than £650,000 and that the net profits before taxation attributable to the assets purchased and the rights granted will be not less than £215,000 for the period from June 22, 1970 to January 2, 1971. Gala has forecast that for the year ending January 2, 1971, net profits before tax will be not less than £270,000.

On completion of the transaction, Mr
Advertiser's announcement

S. N. Steen, chairman Smith & Nephew will be appointed chairman of Gala while Mr S. H. Picker will be appointed deputy chairman jointly with Mr C. W. Crouch, a director of S & N. [Corrected note.] Mr J. Hargreaves, a director of Smith & Nephew, will be appointed an additional director.

Weddel to expand

Work has begun on the new factory being built for Weddel Pharmaceuticals Ltd at Wrexham, Denbighs. On a five-acre site, it is planned to be 58,000 sq ft in area, and to make the company's current range of animal-based products. The building is expected to be completed by the end of the summer of 1971. Mr David Moreau (below) has been appointed general manager of Weddel.

CIBA-Geigy merger

J. R. Geigy, SA, Basle, Switzerland, have published details of asset disposals which Geigy and CIBA will have to undertake in the US to meet obligations to the US Department of Justice to permit a merger of the companies (C&D, July 25, p 100).

In the pharmaceutical sector, a single purchaser will have to be found within two years for patents and materials and information filed with the Food and Drug Administration for Geigy products, other than the range of Boehringer pharmaceuticals which Geigy markets in the US. CIBA-Geigy (the merged company) will, it is now stated, be able to keep all the products concerned in its own production programme and, with the exception of the brands Hygroton and Regroton, continue to sell them under existing brand names.

The purchasing company will further obtain the pharmaceutical plant at Suffern, New York.

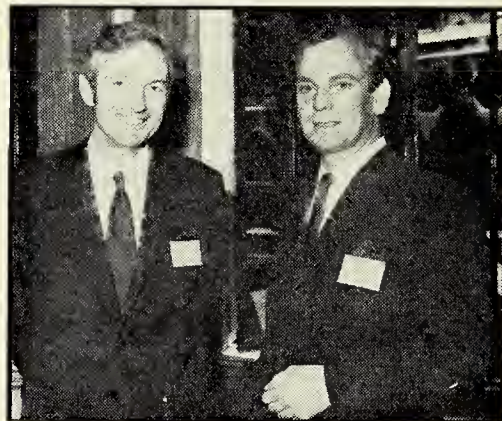

Commenting on the U.S. conditions, Schweizerischer Bankverein said that losses in the US area should be offset by growth in other sectors. The joint turnover of CIBA and Geigy in the US in 1968 was $423 m with the activities affected by the anti-trust judgement representing around $94 m or 7.5 per cent of total world sales of both companies.

Yardley in Brazil

Yardley of London Ltd's new factory in Sao Paulo, Brazil, for making fragrances, soaps and toiletry products was officially opened this month in the presence of the Minister of Commerce and Industry and the Governor of the State of Sao Paulo.

To mark this investment, which follows forty years successful exporting to Brazil, a special display has been mounted in the Brazilian Trade Centre in London, showing the factory and a selection of Brazilian made Yardley goods.

On September 7 the company are staging in London as part of their bi-centenary celebrations an exhibition which traces highlights of Yardley history including soap making in London in 1835 and at Basildon in 1970 where recently new plant has been installed which has helped to step up production.

Sales and Profit before Tax are a record, despite unsettled trading conditions coupled with rising operating expense.

Dividends have been restricted in the past to augment liquid resources. The time has now come when a more realistic dividend is recommended in relation to profit earned. It is proposed that it be increased from 8% to 15% for the year under review.

The Future. Sales for the four months to June show a satisfactory increase. The business is in good heart, and I am hopeful that the profit for the current year will show some improvement on the present level.

The Xrayser column

To go, or not to go

That is the question, and, so far as the Pharmaceutical Society is concerned, we appear to have little say in the matter of where we are to be domiciled, whether in Bloomsbury or at Lambeth. There certainly have been slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, but, in this modern age, taking arms against our sea of troubles seems pointless, for mere opposition is unlikely to have much result. The law's delay and the insolence of office are now old friends, and we are not considered in the matter of bearing the ills we have rather than flying to others we know not of.

In fact, we have been subjected to recurring threats of huffing and puffing and blowing our house down, and now the report of the August meeting of the Council tells us that the dangerous structure notice on No 17 has been withdrawn.

But in the light of the letter from the Ministry of Public Building and Works, I should not be inclined to attach too much importance to that. Meantime, the work of the Society must go on, although there must be something of a feeling that the bailiffs are encamped on the doorstep and the Council's native hue of resolution sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought.

Beneath it all must lie the question which might well be asked — hath this fellow no feeling of his business? I wonder what would be the reaction to it all if a president of a bygone age, whose term of office consisted of a crusade for a new building, could return to the scene of his labours? We have not yet been evicted — only threatened; and at my advanced age I do not expect to be asked to assist at the removal.

Handwriting

As one who has suffered for many years at the pen of the local physician I found much to interest me in your Comment last week on handwriting and in the letters dealing with the subject. It is, of course, incumbent upon the pharmacist to provide a label which is readable. I find it hard to understand why that should be a source of difficulty, whether produced by hand or by typewriter.

Possibly it is a mark of my status as a senior citizen that I have a preference for a handwritten label, and I can recall in my early days trying to model my style on some of the elegant examples of penmanship shown in "The Art of Dispensing" to which you refer. Some care is necessary, but no more than is required in the whole field of dispensing. I am convinced that the coming of the ball-point has not contributed to the art of writing, yet there are other things I have seen which have shocked me, and would have caused something approaching a seizure in my apprentice master.

Outward appearance is still important. The bottle should be clean and polished, and the label put on straight and in the right place. There is nothing looks so careless and untidy as a label stuck over that of the manufacturer, sometimes at a rakish angle, as I have seen. The same indifference is to be witnessed in the labelling of packed preparations supplied by wholesale and manufacturing houses, and I have no hesitation in returning bad examples for relabelling. Good quality drugs demand the respect that is their due.

Warning labels

The sooner there is a standard and accepted form of warning, where such is necessary in the public interest, the better. The wording should be on separate labels, which are more likely to catch the eye than the same instruction incorporated in very small print on a manufacturer's label, obscured by a mass of detail. It would be wise to enlist the co-operation of the printing houses, who have produced some quite admirable examples in the past for various purposes.

The top notes of Jeux d'eau are predominantly of lime and lemons underlined by the rustic fragrance of thyme and rosemary. Its body is lent depth with neroli, and a "touch" of clove oil, gives the perfume a "rare distinction."

Shendy and Jeux d'eau Eau de Toilette are packed in "simple" bottles containing 60 cc (35s), 120 cc (50s) and 240 cc (80s). There are also 90-cc atomisers (57s 6d) and Creme Parfumée, 4 oz (45s). (Roger & Gallet Ltd, 17B Curzon Street, London W1.)

Silvikrin helps chemists in hairspray market

Promotional activity by pharmacists is producing exceptional volume sales of New Silvikrin hairspray. Beecham Products report that the brand, re-launched with new formulation and packaging in March, has increased its share of sales through chemists by over 54 per cent in the past two months. Since the launch, sales of all hairsprays by chemists have increased by over 12 per cent (twice the rate of expansion through any other retail sector in the same period) — suggesting that merchandising activity by chemists has not only helped the brand itself, but other sales as well.

Some "success stories" quoted by Beecham include an increase from six to 60 units a week at a Leeds self-selection pharmacy of some 600 sq ft; 36 units a week sold by a 250 sq ft pharmacy in Bristol, which had not previously stocked the brand (here sales were from a small free-standing display in which regular size were reduced from 5s 4d to 3s 11d), and a leap from 24 to 108 economy size a week at a large modern self-selection pharmacy in Eccles, Lancs. — here a massed display of the product was staged at a substantial reduction in price.

Beecham conclude: "These results prove that by actively promoting an excellent new brand chemists can produce outstanding results. There is real evidence here of the new progressive attitude of pharmacists toward retailing."

Miners Panda contest

The "Panda Eyes" look being promoted by Miners at the moment has inspired an unusual competition in conjunction with Mecca ballrooms.

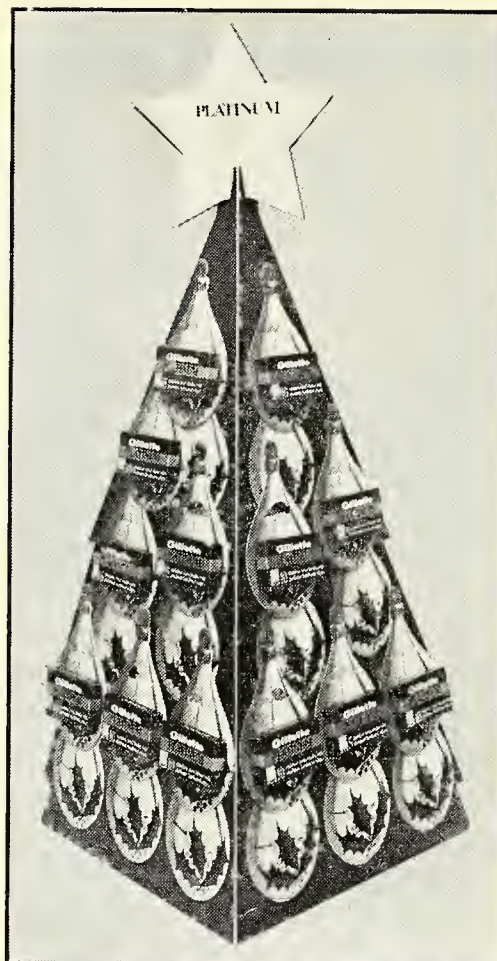

The contest is to take place in 26 Mecca ballrooms throughout Britain during the current week, and competitors, drawn from teenage dancers, will be invited to make their own Panda Eyes. Presentation boxes of Miners make-up will be awarded to the three competitors who create the most effective individual eye looks — all variations of the current Panda ad, which was aimed straight at the teenage market and which will be majoring through October/November in full colour in Honey, Loving, Petticoat, Fabulous, Mirabelle, Valentine and Rave. (Miners Make Up Ltd, Surbiton, Surrey.)

Big prize in Cossack competition

Cossack men's aerosol hairspray is joining Rank ballrooms in a "hard-sell" campaign. A "man of action" on-pack consumer contest, which will also include the new Speedfoam shave cream, has the theme: "Man of action — virile and going places."

The 6-oz cans of both products carry the entry form entitling consumers to compete for a star prize — a £1,800 Lotus Europa, plus £250-worth of clothes.

The Rank Organisation is to back the contest through 19 leisure centres throughout England, Scotland and Wales with "Cossack man of action nights," starting on August 25 at Brighton and winding up at Croydon in the Christmas period.

Wherever possible, Rank are to put a Lotus Europa on show. (Reckitt & Colman Toiletries Division, Sunnydale, Derby.)

Sweetex. Smarter than calories.

Dear, sweet, lovely Madam.
If you want to stay slenderly slim, the thing to do is—drop one, tiny, white, sensible Sweetex into your tea or coffee.

Instead of a teaspoonful of sugar.

It saves you 27 calories every time. Off, possibly, your lovely waist.

It tastes sweet and that's all.
Which is all you want,
if you're smart.

And which is probably why Sweetex is the most trusted of all sweeteners.

The 200 tube of Sweetex costs
you just 2/-. But it saves you, altogether, 5,400 calories in your calorie-controlled diet.

Put another way, it saves you walking 108 miles. Which is what it takes to get rid of 5,400 calories.

It's easier to stay slim than to get slim. And it's smarter.

Shirt and trousers by Ossie Clark.
Weight watching by Sweetex.

Shoot first, talk later

Last weekend's fracas between the Member of Parliament for Bristol South-east and the city's chemists (p. 209) highlights once again the apparent inability of pharmacists to educate the public in general and MPs in particular about the specialist work involved in providing a full pharmaceutical service.

In attempting to draw attention to the shortage of chemists' shops in Bristol and many other cities, Mr Anthony Wedgwood Benn wrote to the Secretary of State for Social Services calling for a departmental investigation.

He pointed out that the problem was a complex one involving both professional and economic considerations and suggested four means of overcoming it. These included dispensing from health centres, a re-examination of the qualifications needed for some simple dispensing, subsidies to pharmacies in uneconomic areas and improved facilities for delivery of prescriptions.

In the course of his letter Mr Benn referred to changes in the practice of dispensing and wrote: "Now it is usually a matter of counting out the appropriate number of named and numbered drugs supplied by the manufacturer and putting them in a box with the proper label. I find it hard to believe that some de-skilling would not be practicable."

Mr Benn's phraseology in that passage, despite his subsequent assertion on the BBC's "Today" programme that he did not intend to devalue the pharmacist and his definition of "de-skilling" given to the C&D, can only be described as inept. Taken at face value and as reported in the Bristol Press, the phrase meant the "de-skilling" of the pharmacist's job. And as an ex-Minister, Mr Benn might have been expected to weigh his words carefully.

An unfortunate omission

It would also appear that Mr Benn was putting forward his four suggestions as original ideas and that he was unaware of the Pharmaceutical Society's proposals for a planned pharmaceutical service. He has since told the C&D that he was aware at the time of writing his letter to the Minister that the Society's plans for rural areas had been put forward to the Ministry.

Nevertheless, this was not apparent from the Press reports and would not have been so even from a perusal of the original letter.

The omission led to criticism that Mr Benn had not "done his homework" and the Bristol Evening Post the following evening carried a comment from assistant secretary of the Pharmaceutical Society, Mr J. Ferguson, that "Mr Benn does not seem to appreciate that the chemist's job has changed."

The following evening a report appeared in which Mr Benn expressed satisfaction at having stirred up public interest in the chemists' shop situation and observed that though his remarks had not been popular with the Pharmaceutical Society, the Society were representing the profession's interests while he was looking after those of his constituents.

Subsequently, the secretary of the Local Pharmaceutical Committee, Mr W. J. Homer was also extremely critical of Mr Benn's letter. He pointed out that such local problems could not be solved by appealing directly to the Minister.

Now, Mr Benn has offered to meet the Bristol chemists to discuss the whole matter. How much better if he had done this in the first place so that, armed with full knowledge of the economics of pharmacy in his local situation he could have approached the Minister with the support of his constituent pharmacists. He might then have been able to make a worthwhile contribution to solving a problem that has wider implications than for his own constituency alone.

It is to be hoped that if the proposed meeting takes place the Bristol chemists will not concentrate merely on the issue of dispensing but will be ready and able to convince Mr Benn of the content of and need for a truly comprehensive pharmaceutical service.

Selling by brand

We know—at least we say we know—that this is a brand-dominated age. Be that as it may, many of us will be surprised at the degree of domination that is suggested in the current issue of the Nielsen Researcher.

The Nielsen team set out to "get a picture of the current importance and trend of manufacturers' advertised brands."

To do that they selected for study 20 major product classes in grocers' shops for which they had at least five years of continuous consumer sales information.

Total sales of these categories accounted for about one sixth of the country's total grocery business in 1969.

Within that total they examined the trend for "manufacturers' advertised brands" against "all remaining brands" between 1965 and 1969.

The average number of advertised brands per product class was five. The proportion of sales for which these brands accounted remained at over 78 per cent throughout the period.

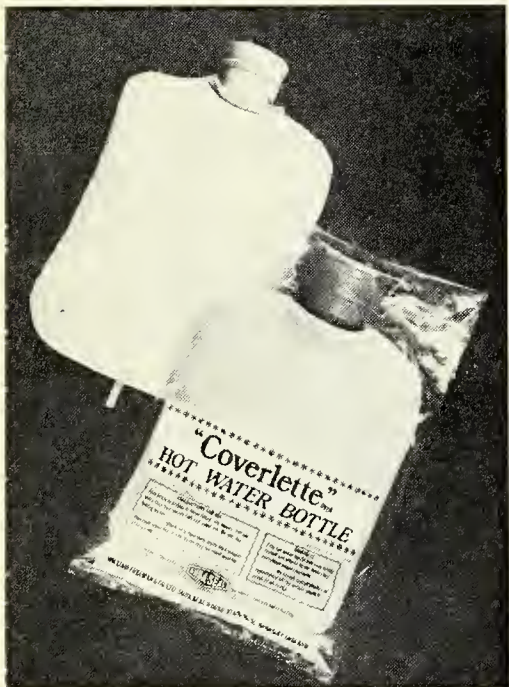

When we reflect that the area of survey embraced five types of canned goods, four beverages, four household and seven packaged provision categories, it is clear that the Nielsen survey is broad-based.

Their conclusion may seem obvious. It is none the less worth reiterating:

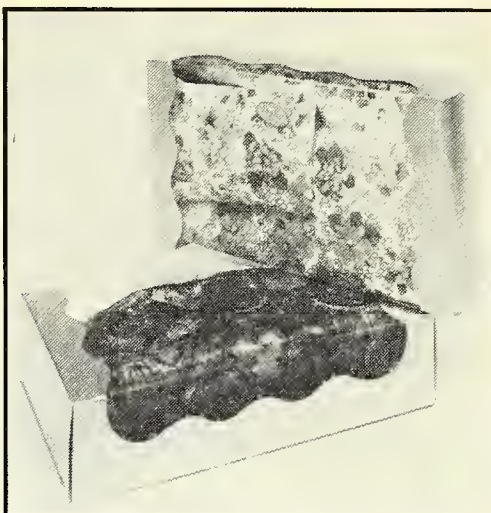

"Manufacturers' advertised brands are, on the whole, as strong as they have ever been. For the retailer this suggests stocking and displaying major advertised brands in proportion to demonstrated consumer demand. These are the brands that the housewife wants, as evidenced by the fact that she actually buys them, year in and year out, at the rate of nearly four to one over all remaining brands."

Certainly, the Nielsen survey was carried out in the grocery field, but it is most unlikely that the pattern is peculiar to that area alone. The movement of straws in the retailing wind may be examined with profit in many quarters. And this is clearly a very large straw in a very strong wind.

NI policy

The scholars of Armagh City were dispensing wisdom and truth, tempered with justice, at a time when the rest of Europe lingered in the Dark Ages.

Perhaps your letter from Mr J. A. Boyle of Armagh City (August 1, page 136) is another example of a glimmer of light in the darkness of our present pharmaceutical morass.

Over the last two years it has become evident to any pharmacist stopping long enough to think, or to peruse the voluminous mass of half-truth and part-surmise issuing from the Northern Ireland Council, that a situation has developed where a small number of influential and determined members of Council have embraced the concept of pharmacy within a health centre.

Mr Boyle has been forthright — he has also sounded the alarm. May I ask if any pharmacist in Ulster has realised the chaos inevitably resulting from the implanting of no less than 40 health centres, the majority complete with pharmacy, throughout the country?

If so, has he also realised the potential long term damage to his own stake in pharmacy — how much will the sale of his pharmacy bring when he retires or is forced out of business?

Make no mistake, health-centre pharmacy will not result in a cheaper service as the Government desires. It will, however, lower the individual remuneration, which, low as it is, provides this country with a very comprehensive pharmaceutical service. With group practices as an example, then pharmacy is taking a long step backwards in the dark.

If the Ulster Chemists' Association and the local Pharmaceutical Committee see fit, as Mr Boyle says, to warn pharmacists of the dangers of participation in health centres, perhaps, some Council member could explain logically, concisely and above all, truthfully, just why the Council of the NI Society is so bitterly set on a course which no businessman in any field would view with anything but alarm.

Belfast

I am in wholehearted agreement with the views expressed by Mr J. A. Boyle, Armagh (C&D, August 1, p. 136). He has stated the case clearly as it obtains in Northern Ireland today.

It is quite true that many pharmacists, threatened with health centre pharmacies are seeking guidance and the "no policy" statement of the Pharmaceutical Society doesn't help any. It leaves each member to his own resources and very much "out on a limb."

The General Health Services Board, as servants of the Ministry of Health, has been given the job of "encouraging" chemists to enter pharmacies in health centres. The Board has obtained the support of the Pharmaceutical Society's Council in that respect, and it would seem, however one would interpret the Council's "policy," that it too would unobtrusively seek to sell the idea of health-centre pharmacies to its members. With its head in the clouds, feet dangling and giving vent to an undue amount of airy fairy nonsense, the Council seems to be completely out of touch with the grass roots of the profession in Northern Ireland.

The Health Centres Advisory Committee of the General Health Service Board, needing a new member, decided it would be advantageous to have a pharmacist co-opted, preferably one with strong leanings towards health centre pharmacies — and whom do you think was chosen? — The President of the UCA? No sir! — The Chairman of the LPC? — wrong again! Those bodies, as Mr Boyle rightly says, have stated clearly how they stand in relation to health centre pharmacies. Is it not significant that the person co-opted was the President of the Society's Council?

Wrong direction

How unfortunate that this anaemic, comatose organisation should at last waken up to attempt to lead chemists — in the wrong direction — into health centres — into lower profit margins and perhaps for many into bankruptcy.

Expressions such as "Someone is bound to get hurt" . . . "That's your hard luck" . . . "The Ministry doesn't owe you a living" . . . "It's a matter of spending two pounds to save one" (all of them used by members of the General Health Services Board and members of the Pharmaceutical Council), have been heard only too frequently and with monotonous regularity, and certainly do not inspire confidence either in the Council or its pseudo policy.

Surely it's what the profession as a whole wants that should determine policy, and I feel that at the forthcoming election, the profession should make its voice heard — loud and clear.

Strange intelligence

The Economist Intelligence Unit belies its name in publishing its "warning against complacency" (last week, page 174). Not only does it fail to recognise the difference between the small business with low overheads and an emphasis on service, but it contradicts its own observations made some years ago when resale price maintenance was generally abandoned in all fields except that of medicines.

The "Intelligence" Unit then says that to survive the small chemist would have to reduce his range of goods from 8,000 lines to nearer three thousand. If this remark is to be taken seriously, it stands to reason that the small chemist should not attempt to compete with the multiples and supermarkets but should operate a service in different locations which is complementary. This is true not only of retail pharmacy but of all forms of retail activity.

For the last ten years, small shops have been conspicuous in the High Street by their absence, this privileged site being left to some 20 multiples who are all too familiar by their tedious uniformity and who have reduced the shopping centres of some of our finest towns to the same dreary half mile of concrete, cut prices and catchpenny stunts.

Of all retail activities, pharmacy is practised by the individual retail pharmacist is most able to survive competition from the big boys, not by emulation but by rendering a personal service to known clients who approach him daily for advice and who are prepared to pay for that advice by paying a few shillings for a recommended standard remedy or for a counter-prescribed medicine.

It is a sad reflection that it took recent Government legislation to declare the pharmacist's right to counter-prescribe when the Society, backed by its charter, had evaded this issue for years. It is a sadder reflection that the majority of our members are still inhibited in the exercise of their professional discretion by the fear of using their knowledge in the field of diagnosis. Every member of the medical and allied professions has a duty to his patient to make such diagnosis as is within the scope of his training.

In all communities except the impersonal ones typified by the large High Street, people know, respect and help each other as individuals. The nurse diagnoses a nappy rash and tells the mother to seek the pharmacist's advice on the purchase of a suitable remedy. The pharmacist diagnoses an infantile eczema and refers the mother to her GP who, in turn, may seek a second medical opinion. Only if any of these practitioners in his own sphere exceeds his professional limitations, will he be called to account.

Pharmacy's economists

Only when our professional organisations heed their own economists who are also pharmacists (I refer particularly to two whom I know and admire, Messrs Teeling-Smith and Tomski) will they get any advice worth acting on. The first body who should take notice are, I submit the NPU whose marketing "organisation" has just launched an anti-freeze. Just listen to these words of economic claptrap from Nutimes No 11:

"Reliable trade sources have estimated that anti-freeze is now used by 95 per cent of the motoring population of Britain. . . . The remaining 5 per cent of non-users can only be described as belonging to the lunatic fringe."

Has it occurred to the ad-men who produce this glossy piece of nonsense that much of the 5 per cent is accounted for by air-cooled cars such as the Volkswagen or closed circuit cooling systems like the Renault?

"The Nu-Guard formula is BS 3152. . . ."

Some of us in rural communities have been selling this in one- and five-gallon

lots to farmers for years at prices which put the NPU product right out of the market.

"Most motorists buy their anti-freeze when the first cold weather arrives" . . . "a cold snap in September could mean a loss of valuable business to the unprepared."

Conversely, no cold snap until January could mean that unsold stock is occupying valuable storage space. If the unit pack of 24 x 1 pint tins selling at £4 10s at 25 per cent margin occupies one square foot of valuable storage space and is unsold in warm weather that space could be better occupied with an assorted 24 bottles of selected cough mixture retailing at £4 10s, showing 40 per cent and turning over six times between September and March.

These, then are the economic precepts to be learnt from this ill-considered dogma emanating from the Economist Intelligence Unit and the NPU.

The NHS Contract, chiselled to the bone by the custodians of Government expenditure will never be a source of complacency to the small chemist, but it does bring clients to the pharmacy who expect to receive advice and are prepared to pay for it through the proper medium of counter prescribed medicines for minor ailments.

Any encouragement by doctrinaire economists or NPU ad-men for the small chemist to enlarge his range of non-medical lines is in direct contradiction to advice given by the same economists to reduce our total number of lines.

We should give all support to the pharmacists who are also economists in our midst by supporting the Office of Health Economics and the Institute of Pharmacy Management.

Ware wolf!

I was stunned to read that Beecham have been trying desperately, and for some years at that, to compete against the retail pharmacist in the UK, trying with all their might to deprive him of a chunk of his cosmetic livelihood. In fact, Beecham's anguish was that they could not obtain with their Studio Girl as large a chunk of this stolen chemist's business as did our declared enemy Avon. And to think that all this time we Irish pharmacists, only knowing as yet the onslaughts of Avon and Holiday Magic on our weekly turnover, did not know of this Beecham wolf about to pounce upon us when the time was ripe.

Beecham's amputated limb continues to tear at the chemist's livelihood. Surely the time has come for pharmacists to organise to treat Beecham as they have treated us.

Not too little, but too late

This is the first chance I have had to congratulate the Central Contractors Committee since they announced their new claim. I do so, then, sincerely, for exhibiting a more realistic attitude to what is going on in the world around. My doubts arise when I examine the figures more closely.

We have been paying back an apparent over-payment for some time now. Indeed there is reference still to it in the figures published on this occasion. The phrase used is "to eliminate the over-payment brought forward to January 1, 1970." This "overpayment" must have been calculated in relation to figures obtained in the last survey, some three years ago. The claim made now shows that we have suffered a constant erosion of our profit margin over the last three years.

It may well be that in actual fact we have never been overpaid at all. If a claim of this size is justified on the present survey figures, and costs have been rising over the last three years, we may indeed have been working at an actual or near loss for some time, and the "overpayment" we have so laboriously paid back, may have been eroded completely some time ago.

Graduating the costs obtained in this survey in a curve since 1967, would surely be revealing in terms of profitability. I am sure the statisticians, who love curves and graphs, must have produced one. Can we see it, to reassure us that we have not worked for very little for a long time?

It may be embarrassing for the Contractors Committee to release figures of this kind. In view of the hardening attitude of the Government to wages claims, it is imperative that the widest publicity should be given to ensure fair treatment of our claim.

Summer time

I notice that my colleague, Xrayser, has written of the delights of summer holidays. Just returned from a refreshing two weeks vacation, I read this with particular interest. But why only two weeks?

This period is, of course, dictated by the availability of locums, and my ability to pay. I consider myself lucky, for I have had the same retired pharmacist for a number of years now. What will happen when he decides to call it a day is anyone's guess. What is certain is that we are dependent on a vanishing race of men and women, who, actuated partly by compassion for their colleagues still in practice, and partly by the fact that the economics of their age demands that they still must work when retirement is their due, continue to serve us.

Pharmacy needs an elite corps of young locums, people who are prepared, for above average earnings, to make the particular field of the service their career. Unless this happens, pharmacists will be left behind, as usual, in the claims of the community at large to longer vacations.

I am sorry to return to our Contractors Committee again, but would they assure all of us others who are interested that a claim for locum fees is included in the remuneration equation at a realistic level. The salary to attract locums must be well over £4,000 per annum. The length of holiday must be at least one month. Have those sort of figures been included in the claim? If they have, will they please inform the contractors to remove any doubts?

At the moment, no matter what figures are quoted for other professions, pharmacists in general practice work longer hours than almost anyone else in the community. Do not let us add to that terrible record by proving that we have shorter holidays too.

Nostalgia

The Christmas shows have come and gone, and, on rueful reflection, they are not the same entertainment as of old. In fact, they indeed, crystallise the difference; they used to be entertainment, now they are strictly business. I remember, when an apprentice, the great barrels that used to arrive after the "boss's" visit to the show and my senior apprentice's agonised cry when he saw them: "Drunk again — the got him drunk again!" An unjustified remark, I am sure.

Twenty years later I used to wake after the traditional visit and hospitality only vaguely remembering what I had ordered. Today, of course, all is business, reflecting I think, the changed attitude of the whole community — the days of the amateur being over, and the strict professional outlooks reigning supreme. Sad — but inevitable.

The one constant is that I still buy on hunches, as no-one can tell me what the public will accept and what they will demand; indeed, as I think of what has been ordered this year, I sometimes feel that I was a more inspired buyer after the convivial welcoming drink! Of course the only obvious conclusion from the paragraph is that I am getting old.

Hanged if I will

Answering the telephone the other day I was asked to hang on for the doctor receptionist, presumably by a junior receptionist. How far down the line does one go in this bad-mannered procedure. In future, unless the response is immediate, I shall hang up. My time is as valuable as that of anyone else, doctor or receptionist.

PACKAGE DESIGN WINNERS

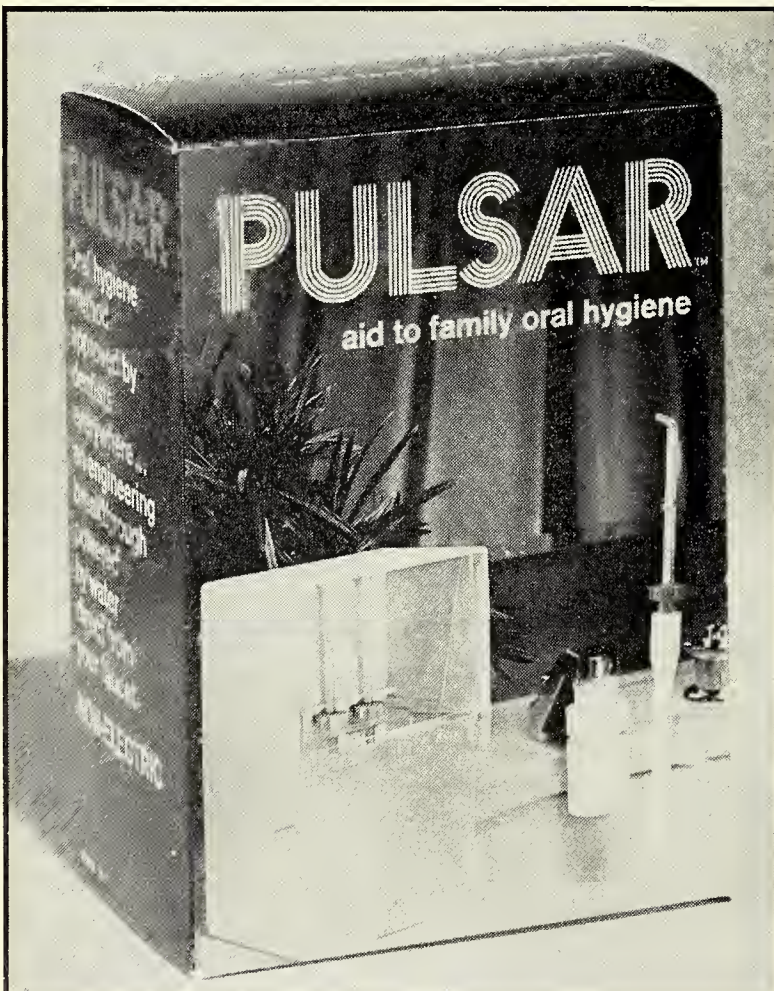

Every week brings something new in packaging onto the chemist's shelves. The sales-winning qualities of the packages are quickly appreciated, but the qualities of protection and preservation of the contents may be taken for granted. Both aspects are, however, considered by judges in the many international competitions in which the package designers, users and makers take part. We show on this page a number of top designs which gained the judges' approval in a folding carton competition sponsored in the United States by the Paperboard Packaging Council

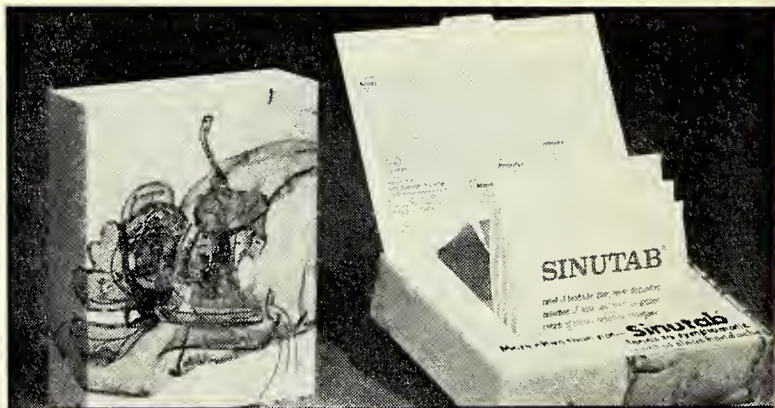

Alka-Seltzer Plus, from Miles Laboratories Inc: An effective new product image is provided by stop-action wrap-around bleed photography which has been incorporated into the total graphic design of this package

Norinyl, from Syntex Laboratories Inc: Totally feminine graphics imply the nature of the product's drug regimen. They also coordinate the outer package, inner dispensing carton, and in dividural product package units

Pulsar, by the American Sun Mark Company: This carton, containing an aid to family oral hygiene, has strong visual impact because it shows how the product is used. Carton construction makes it easily accessible for inspection

Sinutab, by Warner-Chilcott Inc: The clear anatomical drawings on this mailer illustrate product uses. The inside action feature allows the product to pop up for dispensing and remain secure for storage

Microsyn Acne Lotion, by Syntex Laboratories Inc: Graphics emphasise product appeal to both men and women, while the carton construction permits easy conversion from shipping to display unit

MARKET NEWS

Crude drug prices show easier trend

London, August 19: Crude drugs and essential oils provided little interest to buyers during the week. Imports are slowly trickling through although difficulties were reported from one wharf handling crude drugs.

Prices of several commodities were shaded in an attempt to do business. They included Costa Rican, ipecacuanha, pepper, Canadian senega, lemon peel and styrax. Forward rates for turmeric were weak and were well below those ruling a few weeks ago. Peru balsam was dearer by sixpence lb.

Why you can't compare Sister Lauras with any 'other' baby food

Firstly because it's extra generous with its profit margin

Secondly because it's an 'additive' food which supplements the proprietary foods (you already sell) or dried/fresh milk baby already receives

Thirdly it was created to satisfy the needs of 'difficult' babies—meaning the restless, fretful babies who are obviously not being satisfied with their normal diet and are consistently letting the mothers know about it!

When Mothers of 'difficult' babies seek your advice suggest Sister Lauras—the simple cereal content is purposely NOT fortified with added minerals or vitamins therefore it can be given with 'other' foods (this could give you even more profit!) A simple, honest food that encourages healthy babies, quiet nights, happy days. From all wholesale chemists

Sister Lauras food for babies

Milk is added to make 10-15 oz. (200 g.) net weight. For complete details see the full product literature. * See also the 'Sister Lauras' advertisement in this issue.
